

WATER INSECURITY CORRECTION COALITION

What is WICC?

The Water Insecurity Correction Coalition is a nonprofit organization founded in Upstate New York. We believe access to clean water is a human right, one that people often take for granted. Through advocacy, education, and development, our goal is to assure everyone on earth has access to clean water.

What does WICC do?

Through WICC's 3 initiatives, we hope to help the millions around the world and in the United States that lack adequate access to vital water.

EDUCATION

Promoting water conservation, education on the prevalence of water insecurity in the USA and the world, and what individuals can do to combat it. Through our educational programs and events, materials, and research we hope to inform the public on the issues surrounding water insecurity.

ADVOCACY

Working with US legislatures to put water security (both foreign and domestic) on the forefront of policy making, seeking out proposed legislation that we should support, and meeting with legislators to talk about the importance of water security for every human and the issues interconnected with insecurity.

DEVELOPMENT

Through fundraising efforts, events promoting education and awareness, and long term projects which goals are to combat water insecurity around the US and the world, WICC's main goal is to implement ways to assure the world has access to water, in any way.
